[REDACTED]
[REDACTED] telephonically contacted Special Agent [REDACTED] of the Federal Bureau of Investigation [REDACTED] on 2/24 and 2/25/97. The purpose of these contacts were to provide information concerning an individual [REDACTED] identified as DAVE HOLLOWAY. [REDACTED] indicated [REDACTED] HOLLOWAY on [REDACTED] while attending an underwater technologies convention in Houston, Texas and spent approximately three days in his company. [REDACTED] furnished the following additional details about this individual:

HOLLOWAY is employed as an applications engineer for the THRUSTMASTER (a marine propulsion concern) in Houston, Texas. He purported to have had a variety of life experiences to include eight years in the United States Army (Special Forces) with EOD training; working two years on the research vessel "KNOOR" operated by the University of North Carolina; one year of mechanical engineering studies at the University of North Carolina; six years of work in pursuit of a PhD; one year of employment with the Corpus Christi, Texas Police Department (with assignment as a diver); two years with the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) as a pilot; and the ownership of a company selling computer equipment. HOLLOWAY also claimed a three year affiliation with a foundation known as "CAUSE" and having been an intermediary for negotiations between government representatives and far right individuals and groups at various times.

Based upon the nature and totality of HOLLOWAY'S comments, it became apparent that he was portraying himself to be a white supremacist with strong ties to radical groups. HOLLOWAY indicated that his current wife is the daughter of the leader of a group referred to as the "ARYAN NATIONS" and that she is referred to as the "PRINCESS OF THE ARYAN NATIONS." Additionally, HOLLOWAY provided a copy of the September 1996 issue of "SOLDIER OF FORTUNE" magazine in which he was prominently featured in an article describing his participation as an intermediary between the "FREEMEN" group and the government during that standoff in Montana.

At one point during their discussions, HOLLOWAY admitted to have spoken to TIMOTHY MC VEIGH on the telephone two days before the detonation of a truck bomb outside the Oklahoma City Federal Building. In reference to that particular event, HOLLOWAY stated "the fucking truck was too far away" and indicated that it was not parked in the position which would inflict most damage on the building. While describing the Oklahoma City bombing, HOLLOWAY was able to provide technical details concerning the truck bomb and ANFO (ammonium nitrate/fuel oil) to include its blast over-pressure, fragmentation distances and deflagration with an alarming degree of specificity. Additionally, changes in HOLLOWAY'S body language while describing the Oklahoma City bombing, to include the rolling of his eyes when describing the truck not being parked in a place to wreak maximum destruction, provided the indication HOLLOWAY was attempting to communicate an involvement on his part in that bombing without verbally acknowledging participation.

HOLLOWAY did admit to currently being in possession of an M-203 grenade launcher (described as a M-16 type weapon with a grenade launcher attachment) and an extensive array of other weapons which he keeps in his home.
